Ought to Be Ashamed of Himself. Democratic Congressmen and newspapers who attempt to be witty at the sacrifice of good taste and decency, by making cheap capital out of President Harrison's love for his little grand-son, and applying disrespectful names to Postster General Wanamaker, as well as the President and Vice President, only lower themselves in public estimation:

The vulgar performance of Mr. Allen in quoting in a speech on the floor of the House a verse that probably originated in a bar-room, deserves more than Canada. Science has proven catarrh to Perhaps the most important part of Secretary Rusk's address is that portion which deals with the imports of agricultural products and their effect on our own industry. Owing to the fact that our farm products have not had proper protection there has grown up a ruinous competition in which the products of the pauper peasantry of portions of Europe, Egypt and India, are pitted against those of the American farmer, Perhaps the most important part of against those of the American farmer, When a man finds a button in his salad he will hardly take the excuse that it is a part of the dressing. who pays his hired help fair wages and lives himself in a decent manner. The only course possible, says the Sec retary, is to insure the farmer adequate protection in the diversification of his crops and a production of a larger proportion of the articles which we now import. It is with this end in view that he has demanded of Congress a wise application of our admirable protective system. In this way all the benefits of our home market may be secured to the American farmer for everything he may be able to produce, and yield him prices that will make his calling profitable.

The Secretary's suggestion that reciprocity should be applied wherever the retary, is to insure the farmer adequate protection principle is felaxed, is an excellent one. Taken altogether, the address is most interesting and timely. It will undoubtedly have great weight and influence with Congress in its work of perfecting the McKinley tariff bill, and will go far toward convincing the country that the administration intends to remain true to the pledges the Republican party made to the people. We hope every farmer, as well as all citizens who believe in the consistent policy now being inaugurated, will give the document a careful reading.

A Daminge Suit-Perhaps.

A Correspondent writing to the National all Glass Budget, of Pittsburgh, from Bellaire, says: "It will be interesting reading for your Ohio Valley readers to pushed against the Bellaire Steel Company for blacklisting some of its workmen who had the courage of their convictions last fall and stood out for what they deemed their rights. This company, it seems, thought their action would not see the light under any circumstances, but some of the men now have positive proof and have taken action accordingly. They will have the Hon. Martin A. Foran, of Cleveland, and one or two legal advisers from Pittsburgh, together their interests. It will be a test of the coming of the campaign the Democratic politicians are at a loss for "thunder." They had hoped and prayed that the Administration, during
